SS CERTIFIED GARMENT UNITS - AN OUTCOME-BASED APPROACH By Dr.L.Meena, Assistant Professor, Department of Management Studies, Fatima College (Autonomous), Madurai Dr.R.Alamelu, Assistant Professor - III, School of Management Studies, Sastra University, Tanjore Abstract: Necessity drives organizations to adopt best quality practices. SS, a Japanese concept of quality, has been implemented successfully by many corporate operating at global levels and has attained continuous improvement in their organizations. SS, though a global concept, nowadays is being employed by local or regional organizations also due to the necessity of quality-drive. This study made an attempt to determine the outcome of SS implementation in the garment units in Tamilnadu. It analyzed the level of benefits enjoyed by five different SS certified garment units in Tamilnadu. The study also determined the contributing factor for SS implementation by these garment units and the impact of the contributing factors on the level of benefits enjoyed by the units. It was found that the garment units which put SS into action with the defined purpose as 'Continuous improvement', reaped higher level of benefits out of such implementation. KEY WORDS: SS, Continuous improvement and Garment units INTRODUCTION Quality is a measure of excellence or the state of being free from defects, deficiencies and significant deviations from standards. Quality is a strict commitment on the part of manufacturing organisations. An organization that is fully committed to deliver quality products to its customers is trusted to achieve customer reliability and continued customer delight in this competitive era. Japanese organizations are pioneers in inventing quality concepts and systems into their manufacturing processes. One such quality concept invented by Toyota Motor Company, a Japanese car making company, invented the concept of "SS" in its Toyota Production system (TPS). TPS is the manufacturing method followed in Toyota. SS, as the name suggests, is the acronym

Welcome to Our Website

The goal programming framework was undertaken in formulating the problem, where a number of constraints related type of exam, type of invigilator, time availability, and other preferences were classified into primary and secondary constraints. The model was then applied to a simple case of exam invigilators assignment at Departments.
