- Growing scientific interest in meditation and its proven benefits for holistic development.
- Industry and society warming up to the need for holistic development of mind, body and spirit for greater personal effectiveness.
- Shift from IQ(Intelligent Quotient) towards EQ(Emotional Quotient) and SQ (Spiritual Quotient) leading to demand for workforce comprised of individuals who are balanced, as opposed to merely intelligent or qualified.
- The UGC and Universities in India taking the above demand seriously and including various certificate courses on Self Development/Personal Growth in their curriculum. In 2014, UGC has proposed introduction of Yoga and Meditation courses in all universities.

2. Program Design Principles

- Spiritual development must go hand in hand with Physical and Mental / Intellectual development to realize one's true potential as a human being.
- External motivation fails to create lasting inspiration unless it is complemented by a simple daily discipline.
- Crux of self- development is thus a process facilitated by meditation.

3. Approach

- Meditation as an essential life- skill and as a means to a balanced-existence.
- Personal transformation and “how to” sessions for self-development and growth.
