Report:

The Department of English (SF) organised a workshop on the title “Stage Craft - From Script to Spectacle” exclusively for the students of III B.A. English (SF). The programme started with a soulful prayer song by the department choir.

Mrs. P. Sumedha, the Head of the Department welcomed the chief guest Mr. A. Madhavan, Theatre Artist, Kaleidoscope, Madurai. Mr. Madhavan interacted with the students and taught how drama can be considered as a game and script as its rules. Mr. Madhavan conducted several activities starting with an activity in which the students were asked to walk around randomly to train their body to react, followed by a group discussion and the importance of questioning ‘WHY?’. The second activity was on dialogue delivery in which almost every student actively participated, and then he lectured about the 5 types of voices and how an actor should train in all those. The third activity was on how to listen and react, and the fourth activity was on using minimal property to enact and how to convince the audience, followed by in the fifth activity where the resource person trained the students on how to prepare their minds before entering the stage. He also quoted Coleridge’s famous thought about the Willing Suspension of Disbelief and persuaded the students on how to convince the audience with the available minimal resource. Later Mr. Madhavan conducted a few games to increase the listening and reacting ability and to co-ordinate with the team without communication. The workshop ended with a feedback session.

Mrs. K. Astalakshimi, Assistant Professor, Department of English (SF) expressed her gratitude to the Chief Guest by giving memento. Ms. R. Harini Sri, III B.A. English thanked everyone and the session ended with a photo session with the chief guest.
