INTERVIEW SKILLS

The guest lecture on interview skills offered a comprehensive exploration of the art of effective communication, particularly during interviews. The lecture commenced with a strategic "Icebreaker," providing attendees with valuable insights into initiating and maintaining engaging conversations. It then delved into the intricacies of active listening and the art of keen observation, demonstrating their pivotal roles in understanding and responding to interview questions. The art of speaking was unveiled, emphasizing the importance of clarity, confidence, and assertiveness. Additionally, the concept of MTI (Mother Tongue Influence) was addressed, shedding light on common linguistic challenges faced during interviews. The lecture encouraged students to embrace authenticity as "The Art of Being Yourself" while underscoring the psychological barriers often encountered when speaking English. This holistic approach to interview skills equipped participants with a well-rounded understanding of not only what to say but also how to say it, fostering self-assurance and proficiency in effective communication, particularly in interviews. This knowledge empowered them to make informed choices about their clothing, aligning with the expectations of the professional world, thereby enhancing their readiness for successful interviews.
