The Consumer Club organized a Workshop on “Identifying Adulteration in Food products” on 24.08.2016 at Food Science Lab, Fatima College. Dr. N. Karthiga, Assistant professor and Mrs. Josphin Jeshintha, Assistant professor of Home science department, were trainers for this session. With the help of trainers, the TOT (Training of Trainers) students identified the adulteration in various food products, such as Rava in sugar, chalk powder in wheat flour, sugar syrup in honey, vanaspati in ghee. The trainers also suggested some practical techniques to identify the adulteration in the food products they have bought for home. The training program was very much helpful to the students to find out the adulteration. The TOT students were also asked to orient their friends and family members.

OUTCOME: The participants got hands on training in the identification of adulteration done in food products. Through this training, they are now able to teach others how to check the quality of food products.
